New WFC Blogs Posted

WFC member Jordan Drebin recently attended the Adapting Together workshop, and penned a blog detailing her experience at the event and many incredible and passionate women she met there who are bringing their whole selves to wildfire and climate adaptation work. Jordan's blog highlights what we know at the Women's Forest Congress - that when women are given the space and freedom to show up genuinely, better and more creative solutions emerge for our forests and lands. Read Jordan's blog here.

ICYMI: In March, we celebrated International Women's Day (IWD), by sharing a blog reflecting on the IWD theme of "Give to Gain." This theme reflected "a core principle [of the Women's Forest Congress]: reciprocity — the understanding that when we share knowledge, opportunity, and support, collective strength grows." Check out our blog to learn about ways you can "give to gain" and further strengthen the forest sector through knowledge sharing and reciprocity.
